 - Non-Member Early Registration $875 / Deadline Friday, 08/27/2010
- Hotel Booking
 - Deadline for special group rate ($289) ends Friday, 08/27/2010

Pathology Informatics 2010 represents a merger of the Lab InfoTech Summit and APIII meetings. The major "tracts" continue and expand upon the focus of the previously separate meetings:

- Applied Pathology Informatics
- Advanced and Experimental Pathology Informatics
- Imaging Informatics in Pathology

The conference begins on Sunday, September 19 with three workshops

- Fundamentals of Pathology Informatics Workshop - Morning
- Advanced API Workshop (see below) - Afternoon
- Histology Image Analysis (HIMA) Group Workshop - Afternoon

The meeting Planning Committee includes Drs. Bruce Friedman, UI Balis, Michael Becich, and John Gilbertson along with APIII and API staff at the University of Pittsburgh including Charles Dizard, Barbara Karnbauer, Linda Mignogna, and others.

API Advanced Workshop at Pathology Informatics 2010

Advanced Tutorials in Contemporary AP-LIS Issues: Workflow Optimization, Asset Tracking and Synoptic Reporting

This API session will focus on topics including tracking and logistics, quality systems and measures including those related to tracking systems, and synoptic reporting.

Early Career Investigator Award

The API Early Career Investigator Award will be re-initiated at Pathology Informatics 2010. This award will be given to an individual who has made substantially innovative and high impact contributions to the Pathology Informatics community. Previous Award recipients include Dr. Joy Mammen and Dr. Jerome Cheng.

jpathinformatics.org Update

- API's new, open-access journal, Journal of Pathology Informatics, has been live since March, 2010
- Manuscript submissions are welcomed
- No manuscript submission fee will be charged during the first year of the journal. Subsequently:
 - API Members: API will subsidize cost of submission for members
 - Non-API members: Non-members will be charged a fee for manuscript submission
- Generous contributions supporting the establishment of the journal have been provided by:
 - University of Pittsburgh (Dr. Michael Becich)
 - Massachusetts General Hospital (Dr. John Gilbertson)
 - University of Michigan (Drs. Ul Balis and Bruce Friedman)
